To Whom It May Concern:

RE: EAGLE 4X4 DRIVER TRAINING

I recently purchased a Toyota Fortuna 3D 4x4 from Barloworld Toyota and was fortunate to have made such purchase through a dealership who had the foresight and good sense to include an offroad 4x4 driver training course as part of their offering.

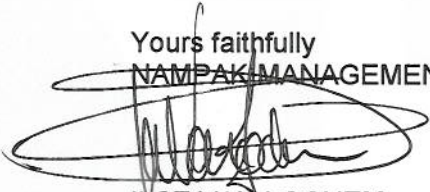

Shortly after my purchase I was contacted by Tom Deveraux of Eagle 4x4 Centre, who arranged to meet me at the Hennops Offroad Course (near Pelindaba) on a Saturday morning, together with a few other initiates.

Tom was professional, friendly and extremely knowledgeable and through a combination of the above managed to get me past my initial doubts and concerns over my offroad driving capabilities. The vehicle, of course was very capable but it was Tom's job (a job he does very well) to show me what the vehicle can do and by doing so engender my trust in the vehicle and my newly discovered abilities.

The course was well run with the emphasis on safety at all times with a good dose of fun and joviality thrown in. I would certainly recommend it to anyone who either owns or is contemplating purchasing a 4x4. In fact, it was so worthwhile it should be compulsory!! In addition, I believe that all 4x4 vehicle sales people should go on the same course, as only once you have seen and experienced the 4x4 in action are you able to add real value regarding purchasing decisions and accessorising decisions thereafter.

With sincere thanks to Tom Deveraux and Barloworld Toyota.

Yours faithfully
